Easter weekend is over, but you would never know it even happened based on the Biden regime's sacrilege.

Instead of acknowledging the Easter holiday, Biden and his people replaced it with "Transgender Day of Visibility," a move that Rep. Tommy Tuberville (R-Ala.) condemned as an act of Satanism.

"@TheDemocrats are a Satanic cult," Tuberville tweeted along with a link to a New York Post article explaining that all "religious-themed designs" were banned from the White House Easter egg art contest this year that was held for children of National Guard members.

Tuberville actually tweeted that same message a second time after Joe Biden personally declared Easter Sunday to be a transgender holiday.

Tuberville's continued references to America's "Satanic cult"

It turns out that Tuberville has been stating again and again at different appearances that a "Satanic cult" has taken control of American politics.

In a recent campaign speech in Utah, Tuberville warned listeners that a "Satanic cult" is actively working to groom America's children into adopting a warped ideology about themselves and life in general.

He made the remarks at a warehouse in front of about 100 Republican delegates in Utah to promote support for Senate candidate Trent Staggs, an ally of Donald Trump.

"I've traveled all over the country, all 50 states, and I've been in good places and bad places," Tuberville said. "The one thing I saw: we are losing our kids to a satanic cult."

The former college football coach emphasized his opinion that the upcoming election this November leaves Americans with a choice between pro- and anti-American.

"We've lost our moral values across the country," Tuberville said. "We've got to get back to the Constitution, and we have got to get back to the Bible. We've got to get God back in our country."

"There's not one Democrat that can tell you they stand up for God," Tuberville further alleged.

When it comes to the Biden regime, that latter statement certainly appears to be true. The Biden regime hung a massive Pride flag, front and center, on Easter Sunday, sandwiched between two American flags on either side of it as secondary accoutrements.

Meanwhile, the anti-Trump Lincoln Project is more upset about what Tuberville said than that to whom he was saying it.

"Dear Republican voters, do you agree with this goon?" asked Lincoln Project co-founder Reed Galen on X, referring to Tuberville's tweets about Democrats being a "Satanic cult."

"Do you read the news and think, 'Hmm, that seems like a satanic cult ...' I don't think you do. These people don't want you and you owe them nothing, least of all your vote."

It turns out that Galen is a bit out of touch with Americans, many of whom do read the news and think there is a whole lot of satanic activity taking place these days that suggests a satanic cult is running things behind the veil. The question is: Will more politics, even the right-wing kind, actually fix things, or is this all just a big political game?

"At some point, arrests of these criminals need to occur," someone wrote on X about how the child-abusers and child-groomers in government and other high-level positions must be held accountable for their wickedness.
